Sporting pink for a cause

KRIS DUBÉ Fort Erie Times

Fort Erie Meteor Mike Boles and some of his teammates went all out last Saturday, sporting a pink hairstyle, as the local Jr. B squad held a fundraiser for breast cancer research and awareness. Over $6,000 has been raised to date and there is still a chance to donate until the end of the month. To arrange for a contribution, call (905) 871-7462.

➤ Council struggles to find funds for Kinsmen Pool

Kris Dubé
The Times

The Kinsmen Pool could be headed off the deep end. The historic aquatic facility and its state of disrepair has been a topic of discussion in the community for the last few years.

Local politicians and a fundraising committee have been working to find a solution to keep it open and a feasibility report presented to council on Monday, had most agreeing that none of the five options available to rebuild or renovate are anything the municipality could afford.

To build a new facility would cost about $2.5 million and to keep it open for the 2012 season would mean the Town would have to set aside at least $180,000 to correct certain safety problems that already exist, such as a suction and entrapment hazard... due to there only being one small drain at the floor of the pool.

Community input needed before any action taken on 44-year-old pool

Although he didn't expect to get support from the horse-shoe, Ward 1 Coun. Stephen

Passero, who is also the chair of the pool's fundraising committee, moved for council to consider the most expensive option of a new pool and multi-use pad that is in the price range of around $3.5 million.

Ward 2 Coun. Rick Shular was the first to express his opinion, that spending this type of money isn't as easy as it was when the pool was built by the Kinsmen Club 44 years ago.

"This is not 1967, when we had $30 million to bank on," said Shular.

He suggested the Town should consider at a splash pad for a temporary solution and in three to five years, take another look at a new pool. But as council gets ready for budget deliberations in the next few weeks and could already face a potential nine per cent tax hike from last year, adding the cost of a new facility or major improvements to the existing one is not feasible, in his estimation.

"I'm just not comfortable going to the taxpayer," he said.

Ward 3 Coun. Bob Steckley agreed with Shular, saying that the options to build a new facility at this time should be out of the question because of other projects and issues that need to be addressed in the coming months.

"The Kinsmen Pool is only one issue the Town of Fort Erie has to look at during budget time," said Steckley.

He also feels the municipality should not move forward with opening the facility for 2012 until safety issues are taken care of first.

"No matter what we do, if the pool is open in 2012, that has to be addressed immediately," he added.

Steckley also suggested tabling the report until input from the community is received, on what direction to swim in on this matter.

Ward 6 Coun. Paul Collard agreed with that, as well as the potential costs. But the pool is also nowhere near where it should be when it comes to wheelchair accessibility.

"Access to the pool is very limited, as well," said Collard.

Ward 4 Coun. John Hill said this is a "difficult but easy" decision. The pool is an important landmark to the community, but he shared the sentiments of his fellow councillors when it comes to costs and what taxpayers would be faced with if council elected to move forward with sinking millions of dollars into the facility.

"We just can't afford it, as much as we'd like to see it," said Hill.

Ward 5 Coun. Don Lubberts responded to comments made earlier in the debate about how when the pool was built in 1967, many residents didn't have the luxury of a swimming pool at home to cool off in on a hot summer day.

He agreed this is more common in this day and age, but there are still many who need a facility like the Kinsmen Pool to swim in. Lubberts suggested the Town could formulate a plan to transport young swimmers to local beaches until a resolution is found.

There are still people who don't have pools in their backyard, who need a facility like this," said Lubberts.

"We should provide them with something," he added.

Coun. Passero said the feasibility is a long-awaited document that is designed to give council a better understanding of what needs to be done to save the aquatic facility.

He understands that funds are very tight at the moment... but it is a facility needed in the community.

"I believe there is still a need for it," he said.

He moved for the option of reconstruction, which would be about $2.5 million... but with guidelines. He asked for the earlier suggestion of moving ahead with a $3.5 multi-use facility to be removed from the debate.

He feels local residents should not have to pay the entire price tag, regardless of what direction is eventually taken.

"I don't think the taxpayer has it in their pockets," said Passero.

Instead, he has asked Town staff to prepare a report in the near future which would explain the impact on the overall levy if the municipality were to pitch in $1.5 million, leaving his fundraising committee with the responsibility of finding the additional $1 million to make up the difference to reconstruct the pool, through grants, community sponsorships and fundraising.

"I think we should at least be looking to maintain what we've always had," said Passero.

The resolution has been tabled until community input can be collected and staff provides its report on what impact would be felt by taxpayers if the Town were to provide $1.5 million for the reconstruction.

Seven-year-old Matthew Haberly at a candlelight vigil on Monday night.

Community gathers to remember young girl

On Monday night, the community gathered to pay tribute to a young girl whose life was cut far too short.

About 200 people gathered at the Angel of Peace monument at the municipal centre to remember Marissa Whalen, a two-year-old girl who is believed to have been murdered.

Three people have been charged in the case, including her mother.

The other two individuals allegedly helped cover up the homicide.

But Monday's candlelight vigil wasn't designed to discuss this horrific act, it was to raise awareness about how important it is to protect local youth, says the event's organizer Mindy Yandeau-Levellie.

She only knows the accused individuals from sharing a seat next to each other on the Fort Erie Transit service on occasion, but being a mother of her own children and knowing that something like this can happen so close to home, she took the lead on organizing the vigil, while also creating a Facebook event to make people aware of it.

"This is something I have a passion for, to help children in any way I can," she said.

Yandeau-Levellie also feels in a time like this, it takes a group of people to pay tribute to the young girl and promote the safety of local children.

"It doesn't take one or two parents to raise a child, it takes an entire community," she said.

Last week, a 28-year-old local woman was arrested and charged with second-degree murder. Marissa's 23-year-old mother was arrested last Friday and charged with criminal negligence causing death, accessory after the fact to murder and indignity to human remains.

On Sunday, a Niagara Falls woman was charged with accessory after the fact to murder and indignity to human remains.

Police found a body last Sunday in Brantford, which is believed to be the missing girl's.

Race dates in 2012 applied for

Plans for the 2012 season at the Fort Erie Racetrack are moving ahead, despite an application for race dates that is slightly smaller than last year.

On Tuesday, representatives from the Fort Erie Live Racing Consortium (FELRC) met with media at the track to give a brief on the upcoming meet.

The FELRC has applied for 69 dates to the Ontario Racing Commission, which is down from the 78 dates held at the historic oval in 2011.

"We're looking at a slightly revised schedule," said Jim Thibert, chief executive officer of the FELRC.

Starting on May 6 and concluding on Oct. 16, the non-profit group who has operated the track for the last two years, hopes its application will be received positively and the requested amount of dates will be approved.

Thibert said although the announcement about the race date application is 26 days later than it was last year, it still provides people in the horse industry with comfort, knowing it is expected they will return in 2012.

"We are moving forward next year and (the horsemen) can make their plans accordingly to come back," he said.

Twilight racing is expected to be a feature again next year, but will only be held on Tuesdays in June, July and August.

Chief operating officer of the track Rick Cowan, said a focus on the 115-year anniversary of the border oval will be a part of the mix next year too, as there will be many events themed around this milestone.

"We're really going to celebrate," he said.

A three-year lease with track owners Nordic Gaming expires on Dec. 31 2012 and after that Thibert hopes a five-year plan can be put in place once the time arrives.

The 2011 season was the second of three in a deal struck by the FELRC and the provincial government to keep the track alive. Each year, the province will have put in $5.6 million and the Town of Fort Erie will contribute $500,000 each year.

Thibert said he was unsure if the Town would be obligated to continue its contribution if the government decides to give another lease on the track's life after the 2012 season.

"I have no way of knowing whether the province would continue to insist that," he said.

The FELRC has noticed a decline in some of its senior patrons or those who could be considered regulars at the track, but there were many new faces to compensate.

"We did notice a huge influx of people coming to the track"

Council members to hear Friends of Crystal Beach appeal

Kris Dubé
The Times

Four members of council are opposed to a staff recommendation that would see the Friends of Crystal Beach (FOCB)'s appeal over the suspension of its gaming license be conducted by the Alcohol and Gaming Commission of Ontario (AGCO).

Tabled for the last two weeks leading up to Monday's council in-committee meeting, councillors wanted to wait until correspondence from the AGCO was received by the Town of Fort Erie, to determine what format the appeal process would take.

Councillors Bob Steckley, John Hill, Don Lubberts and Paul Collard voted against the report and instead have opted for the non-profit group's case to be heard by a committee formed by council members.

The panel will consist of Lubberts, Hill and Collard.

The FOCB had its bingo license revoked by the Town's gaming commission earlier this month, due to political content on its website, which also promotes community events hosted by the group.

The four local politicians who voted against the resolution, feel the FOCB should be able to state its case—but not through the AGCO.

A letter from the provincial commission's chief operating officer Tom Mungham says the appeal can be heard by the municipality because there is a by-law in place that would allow it to happen that way.

According to your by-law, it appears that the Corporation of the Town of Fort Erie has an appeal process in place for your municipality's eligibility assessments, in which a hearing is scheduled and both parties have an opportunity to provide information in support of their respective positions," wrote Mungham.

"The AGCO does not have a similar process," he added.

Ward 3 Coun. Bob Steckley has concerns with taking the appeal to the province and instead believes it should be conducted in-house.

"According to the letter, they will not be able to state their case and be heard," said Steckley.

Ward 4 Coun. John Hill feels what is written in the letter from the AGCO defines that council is permitted to hear the appeal.

"We have the ability with in the virtues of our by-law to do this," said Hill.

Ward 6 Coun. Paul Collard opined at the meeting that this decision is about "due process" and exercising the rights of groups such as the FOCB.

"We must make sure they maintain their rights," said Collard, who disputed comments that some members of council may be headed into this process with their minds already made up.

He said there are no personal feelings and that often when he is behind the plate, he may not like one of the teams or some of its players, but it's all about making fair calls.

"It's about making sure there's an even playing field," said Collard.

Mayor Doug Martin feels otherwise, considering the three councillors appointed to the appeal committee share the same views as the FOCB over the Crystal Beach Gateway Project, the issue that has put the non-profit group in hot water and is the origin of this recent controversy.

"I don't think anyone around this table is impartial," said Martin.

Ward 2 Coun. Rick Shular didn't mince any words, expressing his frustration with this matter.

"I sit here week after week and I can't believe some of the things I hear," said Shular.

He agrees with Martin, that Collard, Hill and Lubberts are not impartial to this issue, considering their history of opposing the hot-button casino project.

"If you don't think you have a conflict, God help you," said Shular.

Ward 1 Coun. Stephen Passero said it should be understood that the FOCB has the opportunity to submit all the necessary documentation to the AGCO to provide it's side of the story and are only not able to explain its case verbally, referring to a portion of the gaming act.

"Am I just reading it differently, or are they not being given the opportunity to hand in any info they'd like?"

Earlier this month, Passero submitted his own name as a potential candidate to sit on the committee that will hear the appeal, but on Monday asked to have his name removed from consideration because of advice he received from outside legal counsel.

"As a town councillor, I'm a director for the Corporation and my opinion is that the best course of action is to let the province handle it. Therefore, there can be no accusations of conflict or bias," said Passero after the meeting.

Support local food banks in time for holidays

With the weather growing colder outside, the first of winter's snowy weather is headed to Fort Erie.

Most people have a cozy home, with warm food and clothes on their back which help them chase away winter's chills.

Not having enough nutritious food to eat, or warm clothes to wear—the basic necessities—never crosses their minds.

However, it's still a reality that not every person has warm food to eat every day or the proper clothes to wear in the winter to keep them warm.

There are a few services in the community which assist individuals and families in need every day which include the Salvation Army and Community Outreach Program Erie, or COPE as it is more commonly known.

For those who need it, a free lunch from noon to 1 p.m. is served every Thursday at the Crystal Ridge Community church.

These types of service organizations rely heavily on the continued support of donations from the community.

Any donation, whether it's fresh fruit, a few cans of soup or gently used clothing helps and makes an important impact on the community.

—Sarah Ferguson

Do You Remember?

Thanks to Brenda Romanow for identifying her cousin, Joseph Pillitteri (3rd from the left) in last week's photo. He and the other gentlemen in the photo were some of the Ridgeway-Crystal Beach Kinsmen volunteer drivers who operated the ambulance in that area. Thanks as well to Val McCormack for letting us know that Mr.

Pillitteri also ran Hebert's Hotel on Ridgeway Road, Crystal Beach. We would welcome your calls or e-mails if you know any of the other drivers. A great cold weather activity would be to come to the Museum and go through our binders. You may just find photos of people that you know or even yourself. We are open at 402 Ridge Road, Ridgeway 6 days a week, Sunday to Friday 9:00-5:00.

Editor honoured to be nominated for award

Kris Dubé
Editor's Notebook

The Chamber of Commerce certainly put on an event that was nothing short of excellent last Friday.

The first annual Business Excellence Awards were held at the Crystal Ridge Community Centre and I was not only pleased as a reporter covering the event, but also as a nominee.

My name made it to the final three contestants in the young professional of the year category and to say I was honoured is an understatement.

Although I was not selected as the winning recipient of the award, it was a pleasure to be placed in the same category as the two other local business people who were up for the same nod.

Part of me was actually overwhelmed with relief when my name wasn't pulled out of the envelope, meaning I didn't have to get up in front of a packed house and provide a speech.

I'm much better at putting my thoughts to print than I am at speaking publicly.

When I have casual off the record conversations about my role as the editor of my hometown's most read newspaper, I'm often asked how I deal with it being such a "thankless" job.

Thick skin and the ability to explain yourself if basically how I sum it up.

But there are times like this, when I get nominated for community awards, that I know there are people out there who appreciate what I do and say.

One of the biggest hits at The Times since I started here in 2007 has been the editor's notebook. Often I keep things mild and fluffy, but on many occasions I can be harshly critical of local politicians.

It's all about balance. But at the same time, it's also about respect.

If I challenge a member of council on a decision, I do it in a fashion that I can still see the same person at council the next week, shake their hand and agree to disagree."

It takes a lot of class from the people I have been critical of to allow this to happen and for the most part I would say that's what I receive in return.

Afterall, politicians are aware that they will be challenged. It comes with the territory.

This attitude is what helps me hold the title as a local young professional.

I'm also polite to most readers who provide feedback that conflicts with my own opinions...because they are entitled to it...plain and simple.

In summary, the business awards gala was a great night out and the Chamber of Commerce deserves a round of applause for how they were conducted.

The winners are as follows: Benner Funeral Services (Small Business of Excellence), Safari Niagara (Large Business of Excellence), Peace Bridge Duty Free (Employer of the Year), Scott Baughn from Bertie Printers Ltd.), Michael Pychel from Durward Jones Barkwell and Company (Community Involvement and Volunteerism Award), Fort Erie Public Library (Accessible Business Award) Ashley Gibson from David A. Hurren Law Office (Young Professional of the Year) Choice Independent Dental Hygiene (New Business of the Year) Circle P Paving (Technology, Innovation and Environmental Initiative).

If you would like to leave me feedback, call me at (905) 871-3100 ext. 207 or send me an email at editorial@forterietimes.com.

U.S. speedways don't matter, focus on Fort Erie is more important

Dear Editor,

I would like the opportunity to respond to a recent letter directed at me in the Times, in which I take issue with comments regarding a call centre being better for Fort Erie's economy than a NASCAR-style auto raceway.

Mrs. Gilloffe feels she is forced to burst my bubble. She needs to realize my bubble was burst in the late '80s when CN closed its local operation, then Horton CBI closed, Menhollow closed and Gault Battery and Fleet downsized big-time.

Since then, churches have closed, hospital services cut, schools could be closing, and the race track barely hangs on each year.

I am glad that she has a lot of free time to research all the raceways that didn't do well in North America, but I don't care about those places. I care about Fort Erie.

I don't need to look at numbers.

I just need to walk down Jarvis Street on a Saturday afternoon, or walk through The County Fair Mall. Not exactly what you'd call bustling.

I am sure the EDTC is aware of the raceways that failed, and perhaps they can learn from the mistakes made. I have no problem with call centres opening in town, but you're comparing sour apples with sweet oranges.

A call centre that rents one of the abundant available spaces on Garrison Road in Fort Erie does provide jobs for the local workforce, no argument there. But how much tax revenue does it provide the Town? How many tourists come to see a call centre? Was there any well paying construction jobs created when the call centre moved in?

The Canadian Motor Speedway is not just about Fort Erie, it's about Niagara, and it's about Southern Ontario. If people stay in Niagara Falls, instead of Fort Erie, that's fine, because many people from Fort Erie work in the hospitality industry in Niagara Falls and I'm sure they'd love to bring their time money back to town to spend it here. And if the Speedway offers local services clubs a chance to generate some funds, well that's awesome, because I am the president of a local association and I know how hard it is to raise funds.

Does Fort Erie's call centre's do that for local service clubs or charities?

And if my kids want to work at a call centre, or a concession stand, that's fine too. But all of those doom and gloom predictions Mrs. Gilloffe made of all of the horrific diseases Fort Erie folks will get from the car exhaust may be a bit far fetched. If what she says is true, every Customs Officer and Peace Bridge employee should be dead by now.

Say 'yes' to toads and 'no' to condo project

Dear Editor

FACT: "It is illegal to search for, harass or capture a species at risk or destroy their habitat." This is from the Status Report on the Fowler's toad in Canada, 2000, conducted by the Committee on the Status of Endangered Wildlife in Canada (COSEWIC). COSEWIC is an agency of the Government of Canada. The Fowler's toad was listed "Threatened Species" both federally and provincially in April 1999. The Fowler's toad issue was re-examined and re-assessed in April 2010 to "Endangered Species".

The Molinaro development proposal recognized that the requirement of a "beneficial use permit" from the Ministry of Natural Resources had to be issued before any construction approval. To blame the Fort Erie Waterfront Preservation Association (FEWPA) for a "Toad Zone campaign" for the public losing their open space is absurd. The underground garage on the site plan had already been determined to be a hibernation area of the Fowler's toad.

The loss of public green space has happened because of private development on the public Bay Beach Waterfront.

Toads, yes. Condos, no.

Stop 'abusing certain groups,' says reader

Dear Editor

I read with interest the letter from Greg Bonito complaining about the Fort Erie Water Front Preservation Association.

We get the usual insult about "foreign residents". Do these "foreigners" not pay municipal taxes to this Town?

It's bad enough they don't get a vote on their taxes without stating they should get no say or influence at all.

It seems any group that supported the election of the three new councillors or were opposed to the beach project get things done to them like audits, removal of bingo rights, and nasty letters to the editor.

It seems there is a small group in this town that doesn't believe in democracy.

We saw this before the last election when this beach project was pushed through without a referendum due to the huge opposition to it.

They lost the election but are still not happy. Now they want to oppose anybody who doesn't think their way.

As for the lighthouse, how many years was it going to sit there rotting away until it was just a pile of concrete? $400,000 is a lot of money but when you consider the Town gets around $1,400,000 every year from the Fort Erie Slots surely a portion could go to this project?

The beach was bought with it and a portion could have been used to improve the facilities there.

Two years ago, the mayor justified a large tax increase as the slot money "wasn't there anymore."

He even mentioned the poor state of the roads and stated "do we want these to get worse?" Well the slot money is still coming and have you noticed any improvement in the roads?

I suggest Mr. Bonito and friends start asking questions like this instead of abusing certain groups he doesn't like.

BUSINESS PROFILE

State of the Art Facility

LASIK provision

The way you want to see®

Lasik ProVision is the Niagara Peninsula's only comprehensive refractive centre which deals with the treatment of common visual disorders. The centre was founded in its current location in 1999 and has evolved to a state of the art refractive centre with a global reputation for the laser correction of nearsightedness, farsightedness and astigmatism. It is a world leader in bringing the treatment of Zeiss Laser Blended Vision Vision for the treatment of presbyopic "reading glasses vision" to North America. In addition, the centre specializes in the treatment of cataracts and corneal disorders such as keratoconus.

Founder and medical director, Dr. Andrew W. Taylor, is one of North America's leading ophthalmologists in the use of excimer lasers in refractive surgery. He obtained his medical degree from the University of Toronto in 1991 and went on to complete a specialty residency in ophthalmology, also at the University of Toronto. He then went on to complete subspecialty training in corneal and refractive disorders. He has completed over 100,000 refractive procedures including laser, photorefractive keratectomy and cataract surgery to date. In addition to his directorship role at Lasik ProVision, Dr. Taylor is an active staff member of The Niagara Health System in the Department of Ophthalmology.

Lasik ProVision has evolved in its current location from its original incarnation as Lasik Vision, which brought affordable laser eye surgery to North America. Dr. Taylor restructured Lasik Vision in 2001 as a founding principal and owner of Lasik MD, which then went on to expand refractive clinics across Canada. In 2005, Dr. Taylor left Lasik MD to focus on more customized patient eyecare. In addition to his base clinic in Niagara Falls, he underwent an international expansion to London, England, Brussels, Belgium and the United States. Currently, in addition to his work in Niagara Falls, Dr. Taylor is involved in the development of a comprehensive ophthalmic centre in Toronto.

"What is exciting now in refractive laser eye surgery is the safety of the procedure and the range of treatment options now available for patients. It is rare that a patient cannot benefit from refractive surgery" says Dr. Taylor. "The greatest development in recent years has been the use of the femtosecond laser for the creation of the flap upon which the laser procedure is based. Not only does this create a thinner and more uniform flap which leads to better optical outcomes, it alleviates the need for a blade and cutting microkeratome which was for many patients the biggest hurdle preventing them from having refractive laser surgery. The safety factor is so great, I no longer utilize the microkeratome blade in laser eye surgery". Dr. Taylor has extensive experience on several laser platforms. "While we started with the Bausch and Lomb platform in 1999, the industry has moved forward to provide greater customization for the unique optical errors of each individual patient. At Lasik ProVision, we have the Wavelight Allegretto platform but we are increasingly shifting to the Zeiss Meditec MEL 80 platform with the VisuMax femtosecond laser. "This platform in my belief delivers the optimal reshaping of the cornea to maintain the natural corneal shape for optimal optical correction and customization. Zeiss laser Blended Vision is unique in the treatment of presbyopia or "reading glasses vision". It is the only excimer laser platform that predictably increases the range of vision so patients can see at near, intermediate and far without the loss of stereovision. This is truly exciting. Previously, and on other laser platforms, we could only treat with monovision with one eye corrected for far and one eye corrected for distance. This left patients with a loss of intermediate vision and reduced stereovision. It worked, but Zeiss Laser Blended Vision works so much better."

What is the future of refractive surgery? "The future is continuing to refine the refractive outcome with ever safer and less invasive procedures. I am very excited that within the next year, we will begin to fully utilize the femtosecond laser's potential, going beyond the creation of better flaps to conducting the entire laser procedure within the cornea without a flap. This may sound like science fiction, but it is a reality and I am honoured that Zeiss has chosen to partner with Lasik ProVision in Niagara Falls to bring this technology to North America."

RCBHS takes studies outside with new eco-friendly classroom

Sarah Ferguson
The Times

On warm, sunny days Ridgeway Crystal Beach High School (RCBHS) students won't have to stare out the windows during their lessons—they can take their studies outside. The high school celebrated the grand opening of its outdoor classroom made of several large stones and shade trees.

The eco-friendly classroom was part of several green projects the school has completed over the past year.

Nichole Bonner, a graduate of Niagara College who studied environmental assessment, worked with the students and staff.

She says she helped RCBHS in their efforts to be more eco-friendly by assessing the amount of garbage and energy the school uses on a regular basis and finding ways to reduce them.

"Just to give an idea of what we did, the students helped me assess the amount of waste the school has by helping me go through garbage cans over a five-day period and sorting through the plastics, papers and organics."

Bonner also helped RCBHS students build a woodland habitat outside the school and to secure grants and donations of trees to assist their efforts in building the outdoor classroom.

"I worked with the students from January to June and when I first got there they had an interest in building an outdoor classroom. The students were fantastic—they worked so hard."

Bill Connor, a teacher who works with the environment club, says the outdoor classroom couldn't have been completed without the help of the students and its many contributors who have donated funds or trees to the project. He says he would like to thank TD Canada Trust Friends of the Environment, Sassafras Farms, the Ridgeway Garden Club and the Fort Erie Conservation Club and the many other people in the community who have supported RCBHS in its efforts.

"It's been a community effort and it couldn't have happened without the help of many people in the community."

Connor says RCBHS is known for its environmental efforts and it is classified as a gold eco-school. The classification is given out by Ontario Eco Schools — an environmental education and certification program that helps schools be eco-friendly friendly and to raise awareness about the environment in the community.

"To qualify for the classification, schools are judged on certain criteria which includes things like team work, minimizing waste, student involvement and energy reduction."

Although the weather has been chilly, a few geography classes have been enjoying the outdoor classroom, says environmental club member Heather Derksen.

"So far the reaction from students about the outdoor classroom has been positive. It's awesome to have been able to make a big impact and to leave something for future students to enjoy."

Brick great job as the master of
To people who fish ceremonies.

along the Niagara River and can't be bothered to clean up their fishing holes properly. I watched going the other day because of you.

Brick To the person that submitted a brick two weeks ago about police officers taking up a part of the outside lane when they have someone pulled over. This is done to ensure that motorists switch lanes when an officer has someone stopped. It's for their safety and it's the law, so deal with it pal.

Bouquet To individuals, families and businesses who donate to local food banks, especially right now as the holiday season will be here sooner than you expect.

Brick To people on both Commerce's Business Excellence Awards. Coun. Passero was there, but he is also the Chamber's president and he did a things in life.

Thank You Cards

Many Thanks
A heartfelt thank you to my family and friends who attended my birthday Open House. You best wishes, cards, gifts and affection were all greatly appreciated. A special thank you to my daughter Karen for all the work she put into creating a most memorable time for me. With love and thanks to all.
Janet Cox

THANKS
The Harkins Family would like to thank Sai and Ineke Cirillo (Cafe by the Bridge, 68 Goderich Street) for catering such a delicious buffet dinner for Leigh and Don's wedding. Their personal touch combined with years of experience made for a perfect day. Thanks also to their professional and friendly staff. What a great job.

*A million times I've needed you
A million times I've cried,
If love could have saved you
You never would have died.
Things we feel most deeply
Are hardest things to say.
My dearest one, I loved you,
In a very special way.
If I could have one lifetime wish
One dream that could come true,
I'd pray to God with all my heart
For yesterday and you.*
